MANIFESTO

Bravery is not about showing off.

It's about making ourselves promises that seem impossible, and then reaching out for those goals anyway.

It's about honestly admitting when something goes wrong.

It's about being proud of yourself without dismissing your hard work.

We love to dream big, but we don't often dare to say that aloud.

But is there a way to share our bravest plans at all?

Start on these pages, under the cover that reminds us of the secret "treasures" we buried in the backyard when we were kids.

Here, your innermost dreams become goals, breaking down into step-by-step paths that wind along the grid of monthly spreads. The steps crumble into weekly and daily tasks, and if you like working on weekends, too, this planner won't judge you. And finally, for the plans that are taking shape as you improvise them, the plain pages with their inviting space.

Because bravery is also about not being afraid to ditch the initial plan.
